

SCREEN
SOCIETY

present

Duke UNIVERSITY
Asian/Pacific Studies Institute

Asian & Middle Eastern Studies

Hello?! Orchestra

Introduced by Prof. Nayoung Aimee Kwon (AMES)

(LEE Cheol-ha, 2013, 85 min, South Korea, in Korean w/ English subtitles, Color, DVD)

World renowned violinist Richard Yong-jae O'Neill is on a mission. His current passion is managing a youth orchestra based in South Korea made up of an international group of children, 24 young individuals in all. They are a multicultural group from a variety of backgrounds, many of them underprivileged. O'Neill, however, firmly believes that through the power of music they can overcome these setbacks, just as music "saved him." Throughout the film we learn about the backstories of O'Neill and several of his young students, as director Lee Cheol-ha slowly unravels the altruistic conductor's strained relationship with his own father.

TUESDAY

FEB 27TH

7 PM

Richard White
Auditorium

Free Screening!

Sponsored by the Asian/Pacific Studies Institute (APSI), the Department of Asian & Middle Eastern Studies (AMES), and the Program in the Arts of the Moving Image (AMI).

<http://ami.duke.edu/screensociety> | @DukeAMI | movingimageDuke

